Everywhere, fifty miles over the countryside, the smoke was raising from myriads of fires. Margaret answered the telephone calls, and between these calls she stood watching the locusts. The air was darkening. A strange darkness, for the Sun was blazing - it was like the darkness of a veldt fire, when the air gets thick with smoke. The sunlight comes down distorted, a thick hot orange. Oppressive it was, too, with the heaviness of a storm. .
